AIOLA VIRELLA, METRO PUERTO RICO EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Time to get things moving! It's said that time flies. But 12 months after Hurricane Maria leveled the island, for Puerto Ricans the days, weeks and months have gone by slowly. In rural areas and poor communities, time seems to have halted.

Puerto Ricans still are waiting for things to return to normal. Unity of will is needed from the highest levels to the communities so finally things get moving with greater speed, so we can say — for real — “Puerto Rico se levanta” (Puerto Rico rises). Read inside and visit metro.us for our stories on Puerto Rico one year after Hurricane Maria.

JUDGE SLAPS DOWN
COSBY RECUSAL MOTION

The sentencing for Bill Cosby on sex assault charges is set to proceed on Sept. 24 as scheduled, after a Montgomery County judge slapped down eleventh-hour motions accusing the judge of bias. Montco Judge Steven T. O'Neill rejected motions by attorneys for Bill Cosby asking him to recuse himself from the case, filed two weeks before Bill Cosby faces a jail sentence of five to 15 years on three counts of indecent sex assault for drugging and molesting a former Temple University employee in 2004. Cosby's lawyer Joseph Green said O'Neill had a grudge against former Montco DA Bruce Castor following an alleged feud in 1998 during a competition for the title of DA that also involved O'Neill's former girlfriend. O'Neill said the motion was filed too late and was factually inaccurate. “No ‘grudge,’ animus, bias or prejudice can be claimed, because it simply does not exist,” O'Neill wrote in his decision rejecting Cosby's motion and ordering sentencing to proceed as planned on Sept. 24. Cosby's wife, Camille Cosby, also claimed O'Neill was unethical after the motion was filed and demanded his actions be investigated. SAM NEWHOUSE

4 INJURED IN WISCONSIN
OFFICE BUILDING SHOOTING

Police responded to an active shooter in Middleton, Wis., on Wednesday, according to multiple outlets. Four people were shot, according to the Wisconsin State Journal, by a shooter at an office building in Middleton, which is a suburb of the state capital, Madison. Officials told the Journal that shots were fired Wednesday morning around 10:30 a.m. CDT at a building that houses companies including Esker Software and WTS Paradigm. There were at least “40 police squad cars and ambulances from multiple jurisdictions outside the building,” Journal reporter

Dean Mosiman said from the scene. No fatalities have been reported at this time. The four victims as well as the suspect, who was critically injured, were taken to an area hospital, Middleton Police Chief Charles Foulke told the paper. Earlier, a spokesperson from the Dane County Sheriff's Department confirmed to the Associated Press that there was an “active shooter situation.” Police escorted people out of the building, and one woman taken out of the building was heard screaming, according to the Journal, saying it was “a devastating loss.” KRISTIN TOUSSAINT

BROOKLYN DIOCESE INVOLVED IN
$27.5 MILLION SEX ABUSE SETTLEMENT

St. Lucy's-St. Patrick's Church stands in Brooklyn on Wednesday in New York City. In a further blow to the Catholic Church in America, four men who were sexually assaulted as children by a teacher at a Roman Catholic church have reached a $27.5 million settlement with the Diocese of Brooklyn. The victims, now aged between 19 and 21, were repeatedly abused by Angelo Serrano, 67, while he was a teacher at St. Lucy's-St. Patrick's Church in Brooklyn. This is one of the largest-ever payouts for victims of abuse within the Catholic Church.

SMART SAYS PRISON
RELEASE POSES DANGER

Elizabeth Smart, the Utah woman whose kidnapping as a 14-year-old drew national attention to the issue of crimes against children, said in an interview that the release of one of her kidnappers on Wednesday posed a danger to the public. Smart was taken at knifepoint in 2002 from the bed she shared with her sister. A passerby spotted her nine months later when she was walking down the street with her two captors, a homeless street preacher and his wife, and called police. One of Smart's captors, Brian David Mitchell, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

His wife, Wanda Barzee, 72, was released on Wednesday after serving 15 years in prison for kidnapping and unlawfully transporting a minor. Barzee had been scheduled to be in prison until 2024 but was released after prison officials recalculated her sentence to account for time already served before going to state prison. “I do believe she's still a danger ... I am very concerned for the community, for the public, as much as I am for myself,” Smart, now 30, said in an interview with “CBS This Morning” that aired on Tuesday and Wednesday.

4 SHOT AS GUNMAN CHASES
WIFE INTO COURT BUILDING

A man chased his estranged wife into a crowded Pennsylvania court building where they were due to appear for a domestic violence hearing Wednesday, then shot and wounded her before he was fatally shot by police, according to law enforcement and local media. Three others, including a police officer, were wounded in the incident that began with an argument between the man and woman outside the court building in Masontown, a borough south of Pittsburgh, WPXI reported. The woman fled into the building and he chased after her, shooting with a handgun and wounding at least two people outside, WPXI said. They burst into the court building, where 30 to 40 cases, most of them preliminary hearings, were on the docket for the afternoon session, Fayette County District Attorney Richard Bower said at a news conference. Bower declined to confirm the relationship between the man and woman, saying the next of kin had not been notified, but told reporters the man was due in court on strangulation and assault charges related to domestic violence and had a restraining order against him.

A year after Hurricane Maria, 'Puerto Rico is writing a comeback story'

"We look forward to turning the page from talking about what Maria did to Puerto Rico and now begin to talk about what the people of Puerto Rico are doing after Maria."

nikki.mascali@metro.us

Before Hurricane Maria devastated Puerto Rico a year ago, the Caribbean island was a popular destination known for its beaches, vibrant culture and natural beauty. But amid this week's flood of first-anniversary coverage, some of which you can read here in Metro and on Metro.us, residents and tourism officials want travelers to know Puerto

PROVIDED

Rico is as captivating as ever.

"There's still a lot of work to be done, but Puerto Rico is writing a comeback story like our industry has never seen," said Brad Dean, CEO of newly formed Discover Puerto Rico. "We look forward to turning the page from talking about what Maria did to Puerto Rico and now begin to talk about what the people of Puerto Rico are doing after Maria. It's a great story to tell."

For Dean, the biggest challenge is battling perception.

"So many people, they remember the coverage of what happened and the devastation and destruction that was experienced, but they haven't seen the updated imagery," he said. "Unless they've visited, they might not be aware that the island's tourism industry is not only open for business, we're ready, eager and able to welcome visitors back to the island."

And how: One year after Hurricane Maria, Puerto Rico has 132 hotels open with nearly 11,000 rooms for rent, and is receiving 14 cruise ships and 110 daily flights on 28 airlines. Plus, 4,000 restaurants, 13 golf courses, 16 casinos and some of the island's most-treasured attractions are also up and running.

Hard-hit community Humacao may perfectly illustrate Puerto Rico's post-Maria recovery. Life-long resident Janet Gonzalez, 47, said, "The water reached our knees and the strong winds left the shelter without a roof." Her 10 days of basic supplies were damaged, and the community was in desperate need of relief.

So they wrote "SOS" on the street, and an aerial photo later taken by an aid worker went viral and helped the community get the much-needed supplies.

Today, that SOS has been changed to "Bienvenidos!" ("Welcome!") to let the world know "we are standing," Gonzalez said. "We are grateful for the help we have received. Some houses need repairs, but our community is getting up, and we need you to visit us."

Power still not restored for some forgotten Puerto Ricans

One Puerto Rican man opens up about his new normal — a life without power, one year post-Maria.

JOSE ENCARNACIÓN

It's been one year since Hurricane Maria swept through Puerto Rico, and unlike the vast majority of his countrymen, Don Fermín Pérez still doesn't have electric power at his home, forcing him into survival mode every single day.

Having just turned 70, Pérez lives alone in Yabucoa, a little town on the southeastern coast of the island. He doesn't receive Social Security benefits, and lacks the resources to go downtown and ask for the public assistance he desperately needs.

After the hurricane, no one from Yabucoa's municipal government ever went by his home. Pérez told Metro that American brigades were unable to re-establish electric power since they couldn't find a way to connect his residency with a light pole located about ten steps from his front door.

"American brigades passed through this area. I never saw Puerto Ricans working to fix this issue. Everyone around here started getting electric power back, but since I don't have any money and don't get any assistance aside from government coupons, I couldn't do anything to fix it. I lost what they call the 'condulote,' which helps connect the post with the house. Since I don't have money, it couldn't be fixed," he told Metro.

The front door of Pérez's home is broken. One of the three rooms doesn't have a single window and, due to the deplorable conditions in which Hurricane Maria left the infrastructure of the house, parts of the wall and the ceiling are crumbling. Fungus has completely blackened Pérez's bed, and its foul smell permeates the inside of the house.

The house where Pérez has now lived for 31 years is now a threat to his safety.

FEMA came to Pérez's house, he told Metro, but nothing happened.

"FEMA told me that Tu Hogar Renace ('Your Home Reborn,' a local government program funded by FEMA) was over. But I don't know if that's the truth. I spoke with people that were working for FEMA and a lady came over. She told me, 'Look, show me the documents, the papers that you must have at hand.' But when I applied for FEMA assistance after the hurricane I didn't have my papers. That's why I never received assistance," Pérez said.

Pérez explains how he functions when darkness falls. He says that he applied for the Obama Phone program and that he finds his way around the house with the little flashlight on the phone.

"This lights up and works fine," he said. "I go to bed and spend the night peacefully. It's not like I can do anything else."

The U.S. government has said that Puerto Ri-co's recovery has been a success, and Puerto Rico's local government and its Electric Power Authority have said repeatedly that electric power has been re-established throughout the entire island.

And yet, Pérez keeps waiting in Calabazas Arriba. Yabucoa's mayor, Rafael Surillo, didn't reply to requests for comment.

Costly Joint-Pain Injections Replaced By New $2 Pill

New pill boosts the same lubricating joint fluid as expensive and painful injections - without using a needle. Users report dramatic relief from swelling, pain and stiffness without side effects and expense.

Health News Syndicate

HNS—A popular needle injection for people with joint pain is now available in an inexpensive nonprescription pill. The breakthrough came when researchers discovered a way to deliver the injected “relief molecule” through the digestive system.

Top US clinics have used these needle injections for years because they deliver powerful relief. Unfortunately, the shots are painful and expensive. They also only work on the joint being treated.

The new pill, called Synovia, delivers the same “relief molecule” as the injections. However, it has some impressive advantages. First, it’s inexpensive and nonprescription. Also, relief is delivered to every joint in the body because it enters the bloodstream through the digestive system.

This gives it the ability to reduce a much wider variety of pain. Users report greater flexibility and less stiffness in their knees. Hands and shoulders move pain-free for the first time in years. Even neck and lower back pain improve dramatically.

All this without spending over $600 on needle injections and taking trips to the doctor every week.

The medical community is very excited about this new breakthrough. Dr. Jacob Moss says, “Synovia is a great option for those suffering from joint pain. Injections are usually a last resort because of the pain and expense. However, Synovia should be taken at the first sign of discomfort.”

New Discovery

The needle injection procedure has been given to hundreds of thousands of patients over the last several years.

Doctors use the shots to boost a critical element of the joint called synovial fluid. This lubricating fluid is found between the cartilage and bones of every joint.

According to the firm’s head of R&D, Mike McNeill, “Researchers have been working for years to find a way to boost this fluid noninvasively. The problem was the molecule used in the injections was too large to absorb into the bloodstream.”

Top scientists conquered this obstacle by finding a smaller form of the same molecule. This new glucose form is easily absorbed by your stomach and intestines!

Now those who suffer from joint pain can get relief without painful injections. At less than $2 per day, early users like Steve Young are impressed. He says, “I’ve tried more pills than I can count, without any luck. Synovia is different. My knees and hands haven’t felt this good in years!”

Impressive Clinical Results

Leading clinics use injection therapy because it works. Recent clinical trials show the pill form also delivers major relief.

One example is a landmark study out of Europe. In the study the active ingredient in Synovia was compared to a popular NSAID pain reliever. The goal was to see if it could reduce pain and swelling around the knee. The results were incredible!

After just 30 days, more than 8 out of 10 people who took Synovia’s active ingredient had NO swelling. However, only 2 out of 10 people who took the NSAID experienced reduced swelling.

The study also looked at cases of severe swelling. Amazingly, zero cases of severe swelling were detected in the group taking the active ingredient found in Synovia. This means it was 100% effective for the cases of severe swelling!

In contrast, 9 out of 10 people taking the NSAID still had severe swelling. McNeill points out, “The impressive thing about this study is the active ingredient wasn’t tested against a fake pill. It was up against one of the most popular NSAIDs people use every day. It’s easy to see why people in pain are excited to get relief without an injection.”

The New Way It Delivers Relief

Getting relief without injections has big advantages. The most obvious is avoiding being stuck by a large needle every week for 5 weeks.

Another downside of injections is the doctor can “miss”. The needle needs to be inserted into a precise spot in the joint to work. Otherwise, you risk the treatment being ineffective.

However, boosting your lubricating joint fluid by taking a pill delivers relief to all your joints, not just one.

There’s an additional reason the active ingredient in Synovia works so well – it nourishes the cartilage.

McNeill says, “This is vital because cartilage does not have blood vessels. The fluid

NO MORE NEEDLES: A popular needle injection pain-killer for joint pain is being replaced. The key molecule in these injections can now be delivered by taking a new low-cost pill called Synovia.

in the joint serves two very important pain-relief roles: lubrication and giving the cartilage the nutrients it needs.”

Approved By Leading Doctors

The new delivery system for this molecule has caught the attention of leading medical doctors.

“Needle injections for joint pain have been around for years because they work. Being able to get the same relief molecule through a pill is amazing. Injections may be a last resort, but I’d recommend Synovia at the first sign of pain,” said Dr. Marie Laguna.

Dr. Moss adds, “The research behind the active ingredient in Synovia is very exciting. This product is a great choice for those who haven’t had success with other joint pain treatments.”

110% Money Back Guarantee

Amazing feedback from users of Synovia has generated a wave of confidence at the company. So much so that they now offer Synovia with a 110% money back guarantee.

The company’s president, Michael Kenneth says, “We’ve seen how well it works. Now we want to remove any risk for those who might think Synovia sounds too good to be true.”

Simply take the pill exactly as directed. You must enjoy fast acting relief. Otherwise, return the product as directed and you’ll receive 100% of your money back plus an extra 10%.

How To Get Synovia

Today marks the official release of Synovia in New York. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply to everyone who calls within the next 48 hours.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This is the only way to try Synovia with their “110% money back” guarantee.

Starting at 6:00 am today the order hotline will be open for 48 hours. All you have to do is call TOLL FREE 1-888-741-5125 and provide the operator with the special discount approval code: SYN18. The company will do the rest.

Current supplies of Synovia are limited, and callers that don’t get through to the order hotline within the next 48 hours may have to pay more and wait until more inventory is produced. This could take as long as 6 weeks.

UNHEALTHY: No lubricating fluid or cartilage leads to painful bone-on-bone rubbing.

HEALTHY: Synovia’s active ingredients lubricate joints and nourish cartilage!

Maria's anniversary prompts new concerns about mental health

Puerto Rico has been dealing with a rise in suicides, PTSD, anxiety and depression since September 2017.

GARCIA

The date Sept. 20, 2017 has been engraved in the memories of hundreds of thousands of Puerto Ricans as a dreadful day, caused by the hit of the most destructive hurricane experienced in years — Hurricane Maria.

The devastation it brought led to an outbreak of stress, depression and anxiety, with some Hurricane Maria survivors going so far as to commit suicide. Now, a year later, many Puerto Ricans are hopeful, but some feel they are reliving the tragedy, which is raising new mental health concerns.

One year after a catastrophic event is the peak season for post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), according to mental health experts, due to the so-called "Anniversary Effect."

"On a clinical level, we have started to observe, from summer to now, more people that are searching for help for symptoms related to post-traumatic stress directly correlated to the hurricane, but this is only the most severe symptomatology," said Center of Study and Treatment of Fear and Anxiety (CETMA) Director Karen Martinez, adding that more research needs to be done.

"The key moment that manifestations of post-traumatic symptoms start to surface is from 12 to 18 months after the disaster. Unfortunately, we are now entering the moment where we predict that more cases will resurface," she said.

Martinez acknowledges it has taken more time for people to focus on their mental health. "We spent a lot of time simply resolving our basic necessities of having water, electricity, food and a safe roof, and there are still many people recovering."

Among the symptoms of PTSD are having dreams related to the traumatic event, experiencing flashbacks, and a great discomfort with event-related stimuli.

Chief of Administration of Mental Health and Drug Addiction Services (ASSMCA) Suzanne Roig said that Maria's anniversary is a risk factor for survivors struggling with mental health. "Yes,

The stress of Hurricane Maria has caused a silent struggle among the people of Puerto Rico. GETTY IMAGES we have an increase in anxiety disorders. The same thing happened during Hurricane Katrina. It had the same result and it is the same thing we are observing here," she said.

Silma Quiñones, a psychologist in Puerto Rico, told Metro that "typically what usually happens is the anniversary syndrome. It is like established." She added that this syndrome lasts for multiple years after the catastrophic event and its symptoms arise by the date of the anniversary. Symptoms may include sleep difficulty, stress, anxiety, and a feeling of profound sadness.

Renowned psychologist and traumatology expert Charles Figley will visit Puerto Rico to study and evaluate the state of Hurricane Maria survivors a year after the storm. Figley will evaluate the state of mental health services on the island.

"It is not only to provide my specialty and knowledge, but it is also for me to understand the story," Figley told Metro, adding that it could be an opportunity for developing knowledge, not only for the island, but also for research across the globe. "Many people that have PTSD have not been diagnosed, and they recovered," said Figley, who during his career has studied around 35 traumatic events. He attributed those cases of recovery to the fact that people can receive treatment

"not only by psychiatrists and psychologists, but by faith, clubs, friends and community activities."

According to the Department of Public Safety, a 20-percent increase in suicides was observed in 2017 over 2016. The months following the hurricane presented the greatest increase: During September there were 28 cases (in 2016, only 19); in October 2017, there were 22 (2016 saw 18); in November, there were 26 (2016, 12); and in December, there were 20 (2016, 14).

Martinez compared the situation in Puerto Rico to fallout from Hurricane Katrina, whose survivor population is "the closest thing to Puerto Rico in terms of the psychosocial stressors and poverty level."

"The environment following the disaster left such a big impression that for people who already have risk factors for suicide, this becomes 'the straw that broke the camel's back,'" Martinez explained.

In the days immediately following Hurricane Maria, the island's suicide prevention helpline received about 800 calls. Now, a year later, the helpline is still getting 500 to 600 calls daily. "We continue to promote the use of the PAS line because that line is much more than suicide prevention," explained Roig.

If you are having suicidal thoughts, the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline provides 24/7 free and confidential support at 1-800-273-8255 (TALK), or visit suicidepreventionlifeline.org.

Trump warns South Carolina after Florence deluge

At least 36 people have died due to last week's hurricane.

President Donald Trump warned South Carolina on Wednesday "water is coming your way" from more floods as the death toll from Hurricane Florence rose to at least 36 after a sheriff's van was swept away, killing two women.

"Over the next couple of days, it's going to get rough in South Carolina. ... Whatever you need from Washington, we are there," Trump told an official briefing in Conway, S.C.

"Now it looks nice, but it's really the calm before the storm," he said, referring to water draining into rising rivers after Florence's epic deluge over the weekend.

Trump visited a neighborhood in Conway where residents were loading moving vans in anticipation of more flooding.

Florence has killed at least 36 people, including 27 in North Carolina, eight in South Carolina and one in Virginia. Two of the South Carolina victims were mental health patients who drowned on Tuesday when a van carrying them was swept away by floodwaters.

More than 15,000 people remain in shelters and more than 200,000 customers are without power across North Carolina because of Florence, according to state officials.

Although the storm is long gone, river flooding still poses a danger. The Cape Fear River was expected to crest at 61.5 feet, four times its normal height, on Wednesday in Fayetteville, N.C., a city of 200,000 near the Fort Bragg Army base in the southern part of the state, according to the National Weather Service. Floodwaters have disrupted efforts to restore power, clear roads and allow evacuated residents to go home.

"Over the

in South Carolina ...

ington, we

President Trump

Wilmington, just down the coast, remains almost completely cut off by flooding from the Cape Fear River and earlier storm surges from Florence.

At least 16 rivers remained at a major flood stage, with three others set to crest in the coming days in North Carolina, the state said.

The toll of environmental damage was also mounting as human and animal waste gets swept up in the roiling floodwaters.

North Carolina is one of the leading U.S. hog-producing states and the floodwaters have caused 21 hog "lagoons," which store waste from pig farms, to overflow, creating a risk of standing water contaminated with bacteria like salmonella, according to the state's Department of Environmental Quality.

Trump promised North and South Carolina would have strong federal support. "We're going to be there 100 percent," Trump told officials at a briefing shortly after arriving at the Marine Corps Air Station Cherry Point in Havelock, N.C.

Trump, who has been criticized for his handling of Hurricane Maria in Puerto Rico last year, also thanked first responders for their work since Florence made landfall on Friday.

He was accompanied by Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen, Federal Emergency Management Agency chief Brock Long, Sens. Richard Burr and Thom Tillis of North Carolina and Sens. Lindsey Graham and Tim Scott of South Carolina.

Trump visited a church in New Bern, a town of 30,000 located at the confluence of the Neuse and Trent rivers that was hit especially hard by flooding, and joined volunteers in passing out boxed meals to locals in a drive-through line. REUTERS

The fight against erectile dysfunction

Don't worry. It happens.
But there are ways to stop it!
By Pat King

Many men deal with the awkward physical disability commonly known as erectile dysfunction. As a matter of fact, it may be a more common drawback for more men than you may think. According to a study conducted by the Cleveland Clinic, roughly 52 percent of men experience erectile dysfunction in their day-to-day lives, with 40 percent of men age 40 experience it and 70 percent of men age 70. So what are some ways that you can combat this ... gulp... disappointing condition that affects so many men in the bedroom?

Eat and live right

As with many ailments, erectile dysfunction can be closely related to how much you exercise and how well you eat on a daily basis.

In a nutshell — by getting the right amount of cardio during the week, you will maintain a lower blood pressure which can help you to achieve healthier erections when it matters the most.

Eating right can also contribute to lowering your blood pressure with food like dark chocolate, pistachios, and watermelon all linked to lowering cholesterol and increasing the blood flow in the right areas. Some bad news for those who like the drink a few cocktails from time to time however is that drinking to excess has historically been linked to cases of erectile dysfunction. So try to cut back if you want to see improvements down there.

The importance of a healthy diet cannot be overstated in cases of erectile dysfunction as WebMD found. It is estimated that around "35-75% of men with diabetes will experience at least some degree of erectile dysfunction during their lifetime." On top of that, men with diabetes will develop ED 10 to 15 years before men without diabetes.

Cut out the problem at the root

While many pills and contraptions have been touted as the end all be all cures of this worrisome condition, few have produced the same exciting restorative results as the ErectionWave treatment. Created by board certified urologist, Dr. David Shusterman, this new innovative treatment has taken a different approach to this issue than, say, swallowing a couple vias on a nightly basis. The most exciting aspect of this treatment is that it actually works to cure the real issues behind ED and not offering a temporary solution. By directing high frequency rays towards blood vessels that have been blocked, ErectionWave treatment will increase blood through these pathways to allow for stronger and longer lasting natural erections without the assistance of pills or useless penis pumps.

Another more direct erectile dysfunction cure is known as the Priapus Shot — or otherwise known simply as the "P-shot". This completely pain-free shot has been known to not only increase sex drive but increase the overall penis size to 3.5 centimeters. The shot gets these results by by kickstarting a man's own growth factors in his blood to recruit his body's own stem cells down to the penis causing quicker regeneration of tissue and blood vessels.

If you are interested in either of these groundbreaking treatments, make your appointment with Dr. Shusterman today by calling 212-661-0060.

"He repeatedly and intentionally sought positions in which he can easily prey on vulnerable children," Donoghue said, according to NY1 Reporter Myles Miller.

Per Donoghue's office, Deutsch instructed these minors "to perform sexually explicit acts and to send him videos and photos of those acts," and also "sent minors sexual photos that he represented to be of himself."

Brooklyn high school teacher Jonathan Deutsch was arrested on Wednesday for allegedly using Facebook to solicit child pornography, officials said.

Deutsch, 34, is a teacher at the Leon M. Goldstein High School for the Sciences in Manhattan Beach, Brooklyn. He was arrested and charged with five counts of sexual exploitation of a child, per the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of New York.

According to officials, Deutsch targeted victims on Facebook who appeared to be minors based on their profile pictures.

"As alleged, Jonathan Deutsch, a Brooklyn high school teacher, solicited and received sexually explicit material from minors he contacted on Facebook," said U.S. Attorney Richard P. Donoghue in a statement.

"The protection of innocent children is an utmost priority for this Office and our law enforcement partners," he added. "We will continue to make every effort to ensure that those who contribute to the exploitation and victimization of children will be brought to justice."

Jonathan Deutsch allegedly began finding Facebook users who appeared to be minors around January 2017, according to court filings cited by Donoghue's office.

Deutsch would then contact them on Facebook Messenger, often even disclosing that he was a teacher "as part of his broader effort to groom these minors for sexual exploitation," officials said.

He contacted hundreds of apparent minors, officials said, and had "com-

Deutsch could face at least 15 years in prison if convicted on any of the five counts.

Deutsch has been reassigned from his teaching position since January. Links to his bio via the Leon M. Goldstein High School website are invalid.

"These are extremely disturbing allegations, and Mr. Deutsch will remain reassigned away from students," a rep for the New York City Department of Education said in a statement. "We will seek his removal from payroll and termination as soon as legally possible."

'Flood Rat' understands your New York City subway woes

"Flood Rat" was spotted in a New York City subway station. REDDIT/ U/JACKSON-CHEESEBURGER

If you had an unpleasant commute Tuesday due to some inclement weather actually happening inside New York City subway stations, you weren't alone. "Flood Rat" felt your pain.

Yes, Flood Rat. Move over, "Pizza Rat," and even the most recent, plural "Pizza Rats": There's a new rodent in the New York City subway system at the center of the internet's attention.

Reddit user u/JacksonCheeseburger filmed the Flood Rat inside 23rd Street Station Tuesday. In the video, the rodent can be seen holding on for dear life to a pillar on the station platform as water swirls around it.

"His commute is just as f— as ours," the top comment from u/ShaoLin718 reads.

If you were lucky enough to miss the deluge, here's why more than one New York subway station was soaking wet Tuesday.

As the remnants of Hurricane Florence moved up the East Coast, they dropped some heavy rain on the city, which, somehow, made its way underground.

More than one subway station looked like the scene of a storm. Straphangers shared scenes of the underground flooding from Penn Station, 14th Street and, of course, the 23rd Street 6 Line-subway station, where Flood Rat was trying hard not to float away.

Those who dared to drive around the city also were met with commuting woes thanks to that weather, like when a flash flood trapped a few drivers in Queens.

Basically, lots of New Yorkers ended up soaked after their Tuesday travels — like u/JacksonCheeseburger himself, most likely. When asked how he even managed to capture this footage of Flood Rat, he responded, "From a subway car...in a wet suit." KRISTIN TOUSSAINT

BRIEF

Nike's Kaepernick ad spurs spike in soldout items

Nike Inc. has sold out 61 percent more merchandise since the controversial ad campaign featuring former NFL player Colin Kaepernick appeared earlier this month, according to data on the company's online sales from Thomson Reuters Proprietary Research.

Kaepernick, who sparked a national controversy by kneeling during the national anthem, first tweeted the ad over the Labor Day weekend, which immediately sparked demands for a boycott of the company's products.

President Donald Trump also tweeted, without providing evidence, that "Nike is getting absolutely killed with anger and boycotts."

But the research by Thomson Reuters, conducted in collaboration with StyleSage Co., showed the world's largest sportswear maker sold out far more items between Sept. 3 and Sept. 13 than in the 10-day period before the ad came out.

Nike discounted fewer products in the 10-day period after the ad and saw its Colin Kaepernick women's jersey sell out Sept. 17, the research also showed.

"These strong statistics reinforce the notion that Nike is standing firm — and not just in a social context," said Jharonne Martis, director of consumer research at Thomson Reuters.

"They don't need to participate in the discounting that tends to plague other retail brands," Thomson Reuters is the parent company of Reuters News.

Shares in Nike have rebounded from an initial drop when the first versions of the ad were released, hitting a record high a little over a week later.

"[Nike's] new 'Just Do It' ad campaign with Colin Kaepernick was a stroke of genius ... this premeditated move was another subtle but significant sign of Nike's strength and confidence in its position in the marketplace," Canaccord Genuity analyst Camilo Lyon wrote in a client note last week. # DAZN gives viewers another (less expensive) option to watch boxing

The streaming service makes its U.S. debut with Saturday's heavyweight title bout between Anthony Joshua and Alexander Povetkin.

JEFF TOMKO
Jeff.Tomko@metro.us

"Let's get ready to live-stream!"

DAZN is hoping boxing fans will be doing just that for Saturday's heavyweight title match between champion Anthony Joshua and Alexander Povetkin at London's Wembley Stadium, which will be the U.K.-based streaming service's first live-streaming event in the U.S.

Back in July DAZN's parent company Perform Group announced its billion-dollar joint venture with Matchroom Boxing, as well as a multiyear global distribution agreement with Bellator MMA.

What will the partnership mean for U.S. viewers? DAZN, considered the world's largest streaming service, will give viewers a bigger bang for a lot less bucks, according to its CEO James Rushton.

Last year's Canelo Alvarez-Gennady Golovkin bout netted 1.3 million PPV buys, while last Saturday's epic rematch was expected to reach 1.5 million — at $84.99 a pop.

DAZN, meanwhile, hopes to build a new generation of fight fans with its monthly cost of under $10. Besides an average of one live-streaming championship bout per week, DAZN (pronounced "Da Zone") promises exclusive original shows as well as behind-the-scenes features leading up to each fight.

"We're giving fans what they want — great fights, behind-the-scenes features, all at just $9.99 per month without the cost or hassle of pay-per-view," DAZN CEO James Ruston told us. "[Saturday's fight] is just the beginning though."

It was recently announced that Brian Kenny, "Sugar" Ray Leonard, Kay Adams, Chris Mannix and LZ Granderson will be the announcing crew, beginning with this Saturday's event.

And of course, no fight would be complete without a signature introduction call, so DAZN and Matchroom partnered with legendary ring announcer Michael Buffer to bring his iconic "Let's get ready to rumble" call to each fight.

"We hope this level of access means that current fans will not only be able to tune in to their favorite fighters even more, but also spark a new generation of fight fans and bring the sport and our fighters further to the masses," Rushton says.

Aries Your generosity will win favors. Touch base with former colleagues to find suggestions that will help you get ahead.

Taurus Look at every angle before plunging into something that you've never done before. Talk to an expert and find out how to best prepare for something you want.

Gemini Don't get all worked up over nothing. Concentrate on what you must get done. Letting a competitive person bother you will slow you down. Believe in your skills and intelligence.

Cancer Plan to get out and socialize or get involved in a creative pursuit that will let your imagination explore the possibilities. Romance will ease stress.

Leo Show compassion and understanding, but don't let someone get away with bad behavior. Use incentives to encourage positive reactions and meeting you halfway.

Virgo Make a change at home that will lower your overhead. A more efficiently functional and environmentally friendly place to reside will leave you more cash.

Libra Keep an open mind when dealing with older relatives. It pays to listen to the voice of reason or experience. Slow down, think matters through to avoid mistakes.

Scorpio Don't take on someone else's problems. Focus on your own pursuits and the personal changes you want to make. Offer only suggestions.

Sagittarius Be innovative and come up with a plan that will help you get ahead. The past is filled with all sorts of experiences that can help you make better choices now.

Capricorn Make yourself crystal clear when discussing your plans. You may face some opposition, but the feedback you get will be valid.

Aquarius Don't feel the need to make a snap decision to accommodate someone trying to coerce or manipulate you into something you should probably avoid.

Pisces If you look for answers, you will find a way to overcome a hidden agenda someone has. A positive gain is within reach if you invest in yourself partnerships. EUGENIA LAST

LIFESTYLE

The small-screen celebration is back for a second year with dozens of screenings and panels — here are our picks.

eva.kis@metro.us

There's never been more television being made in New York City than right now, which led the Tribeca Film Festival to expand to the small screen last year with the inaugural Tribeca TV Festival. It was so successful that Tribeca Film Festival 2018 has expanded from two to four days of screenings, panels and sneak previews going Sept. 20-23.

Just like its big screen sister, Tribeca TV Festival 2018 is a chance to see brand-new series making

The essential Tribeca TV Festival

See an extended cut of the final full episode of Anthony Bourdain's Parts Unknown. CNN their world debut and highly anticipated season premieres before anyone else, plus hear from the influential storytellers and actors bringing them to life.

We've rounded up some of the most anticipated events:

Be the first to see fall's pilots

Each fall, TV watchers brace themselves to fall in love with new shows that potentially will never see a second season. For you brave lot, there's the new Fall Pilot Season, a showcase of five comedy series the Tribeca experts are excited. The shows include bringing William Shakespeare to modern-day New York with "My Friend Will," and live the "escape to the country" fantasy with "Livin' on a Prairie."

A tribute to "Law & Order: SVU"

It's been 20 years since Mariska Hargitay put on Detective Olivia Benson's first trenchcoat, and "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" is now the longest-running prime-time drama on TV. Hear from creator Dick Wolf and Hargitay plus co-stars Ice-T, Kelli Giddish, Peter Scanavino and Philip Winchester, plus a screening of its 20th season premiere.

Love "Deadpool"? Then check out Wayne

The writers of "Deadpool" serve as executive producers of Wayne, a new show on YouTube Premium described as a "gritty, hilarious, and sometimes bloody roadtrip adventure tale of young love and reckless youth." After the screening, hear from the production team including creator Shawn Simmons, plus stars Mark McKenna and Ciara Bravo.

The last complete episode of "Parts Unknown"

In a panel sure to leave everyone an emotional wreck, the Tribeca TV Festival 2018 will host the world premiere of an extended cut of the "Anthony Bourdain: Parts Unknown" final season premiere. The only episode of season 12 whose production was completed before Bourdain's death finds him in Kenya with W. Kamau Bell; hear from him and some of Bourdain's longtime collaborators on the series.

Bryan Cranston reflects on his career

We'll never get tired of asking "Breaking Bad" questions, and thankfully, Bryan Cranston doesn't seem to be tiring of answering them. This year is the 10th anniversary of the show's premiere, and Cranston will sit down to talk about Walter White, his pivot to comedy and the stage and more.

For those who like their TV dark

The darker the better has been the theme of TV's hottest shows for about a decade, but things are only getting more twisted. Midnight Episodics is new for Tribeca TV Festival 2018, debuting three pilots about a literally killer vinyl record ("Deadwax"), "True Detective" in the Alps ("Pagan Peak") and a family of cannibals ("Patricia Moore").

'Deadpool' writers bring a bit of Boston to the Big Apple

Rhett Reese and Paul Wernick's new series "Wayne" debuts at the Tribeca TV Festival this weekend.

matthew.juul@metro.us

Having penned the scripts for "Deadpool" and "Zombieland," Hollywood scribes Rhett Reese and Paul Wernick know the keys to making a great action comedy. The duo is getting another crack at the genre while serving as executive producers for the new YouTube Premium series "Wayne," which will have its world premiere at the Tribeca TV Festival on Sunday, Sept. 23, before hitting the streaming service in 2019.

Reese and Wernick will be joined by stars Mark McKenna and Ciara Bravo, as well as director Iain B. MacDonald and series creator Shawn Simmons, at this weekend's festivities. According to the "Deadpool" writers, Simmons' "Wayne" is a "breath of fresh air" that offers a "window into Shawn's childhood" growing up just outside of Boston.

"Wayne" follows McKenna's titular character as he tries to locate his late father's stolen Pontiac Trans Am, going on a "gritty, hilarious, and sometimes bloody road trip adventure" from Southie to Florida with his crush Del (Bravo) by his side.

"We're sitting on what we think is a brilliant, dramatic, funny, heartfelt television show that's unlike anything out there," says Wernick. "We're really, really excited to unveil it on the world."

Where did the idea for "Wayne" come from?

Reese: Shawn is from Brockton, Massachusetts, which is a hardscrabble suburb of Boston. I think that the show has been percolating in the back of Shawn's brain his entire life. He's from Brockton, he grew up there, went to school there.

Wernick: Got the s—t beat out of him there. Reese: Yeah, and also beat the s—t out of some other folks there, probably. And so that voice is very much lived inside his head. When he decided to do this project about a kid from the other side of the tracks in Brockton, I think a lot of it came from personal experience.

How does the show compare to your past action comedy works?

Wernick: It fits squarely into what we've done before. This really is an action comedy that has heart, is a love story. The dirty little secret about "Deadpool," it was a romantic comedy. The first movie was a romantic comedy disguised as a superhero movie. This really is a love story, a romance, disguised as an action adventure. It's the story of this boy, Wayne, who falls in love with Del, also a 14-15-year-old kid. It's action, it's adventure, it's drama and, most importantly, it's heart.

Why was Mark the right fit to play Wayne?

Reese: He wears a lot on his face, and Wayne is a character of few words. Mark is very expressive with his face. He's also very physical. There's almost nothing he can't do, so whether it's throw a punch or ride a bicycle — he's really great at bicycle tricks — he's a very physical actor. There's an authenticity to him. The only question we had about him was, "Can you create the Boston or Brockton accent, given that you're Irish?" What we thankfully discovered was that a lot of the influences in Boston are Irish, of course, and that accent ultimately evolved from an Irish accent. So it wasn't that hard for him to do.

Get Oktober-festive

What started out as a wedding celebration in Munich is now the world's favorite reason to drink German beers and subsist on a diet of sausages for a month. That's right, Oktoberfest is back, and here's where to celebrate.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

Treadwell Park

Oktoberfest may be a Munich tradition but Anne Becerra of Treadwell Park has curated a list of beers from nine German cities, plus a menu of traditional dishes to pair with them. Pick up a Trip Through Germany passport at any of the beer hall's three locations (opening in Hudson Yards at the end of the month) starting Sept. 21. For each city "visited," you get a stamp; completed passports get you a 32 oz. stein (yours to keep) of your favorite Oktoberfest beer. Treadwell Park UES and Downtown will also hold kickoff parties with live oompah bands, stein-holding contests and a gravity cask of Schneider Weisse Mein Aventinus just for the event. Sept. 21-Oct. 14, treadwellpark.com

Nowadays

The gloriously sprawling backyard of Ridgewood bar Nowadays should make for the ideal hipster hang during Oktoberfest. Their Nowafest celebration starts Sept. 21 from 7-10 p.m. with all-you-can-eat sausages and sides courtesy of the The Meat Hook's outdoor food truck, plus specialty beers from Brooklyn's Threes Brewing ($25). The food and beer specials continue through Oct. 6. nowadays.nyc

Bierhaus NYC

Take part in a traditional keg-tapping with a free roast every weekend night of Oktoberfest (Sept. 21-22 and Oct. 5-6 & 19, from 8 p.m.) at Bierhaus NYC in Midtown, the city's only German bar with ties to Munich's famous Hofbräuhaus (so it's more or less Oktoberfest all year long). The Bavarian-style restaurant and beer hall will have special events throughout the holiday for contests like the Biggest Beer Belly (Oct. 5), giveaways, a traditional feast (Oct. 7), kid-friendly events like cookie decorating every Sunday (through Oct. 21) and live music. bierhaus-nyc.com

Blocktoberfest

Keep your Oktoberfest celebration local with Blocktoberfest, a gathering of more than two dozen breweries from the five boroughs pouring their own takes on the traditions of Germany plus new and rare beers at indoor-outdoor bar The Well in Williamsburg. Your ticket includes either 5 or 15 beer tickets redeemable for a 4 oz. pour. Local restaurants take care of keeping you upright, plus a live DJ and yard games. Proceeds benefit NYC Beer Week. Oct. 6, 1-5 p.m., $24-$35, nycbrewed.com

Radegast Hall

Hope you've been training for Radegast Hall's annual stein-holding contests, a highlight of the Williamsburg beer hall's epic celebration taking place over the two Saturdays of Oktoberfest. It all starts at 11 a.m. with a keg-tapping ceremony and pig roast, with brass bands throughout the day and DJs from 8 until late. Sept. 22 & 29, radegast-hall.com

Munich on the East River

It doesn't get more authentic outside of Germany than Zum Schneider's riverside Oktoberfest tent. Decked out in traditional decor with room for 1,000 and German-speaking staff in lederhosen and dirndl, Munich on the East River is always a lively crowd knocking back liter steins of imported Oktoberfest beers exclusive to the event, plus authentic food like pork shanks and giant pretzels, with live entertainment and sing-alongs. Sept. 28-30, Oct. 3-7, various times, 24-20 FDR Drive Service Road E., $20 and up, nyc.zumschneider.com

Top, get under an authentic Oktoberfest tent at Munich on the East River; above, Watermark Bar will have special brews and traditional food along with plenty of lawn games. PROVIDED

Watermark Bar

The South Street Seaport's riverside spot for cocktails and lawn games, Watermark Bar flips to Oktoberfest mode for four weekends with brats and pretzels and six traditional beers on tap straight from Munich from noon to midnight. There's no cost of admission, though if you're coming as a group, springing for a priority package could save you some cash. Sept. 21-23, 27-30 & Oct. 4-7, 11-14, oktober-fest.nyc

Bear Mountain Oktoberfest Cruise

Combine German fun with leaf-peeping every weekend from Sept. 22-Nov. 11 on Circle Line's Oktoberfest cruise. The 2.5-hour trip up the Hudson River from Pier 82 gets you to Bear Mountain National Park, where you've got three hours to hike and explore before setting back out for home. Along the way, enjoy live polka and oompah bands plus traditional Oktoberfest fare like schnitzel and bratwurst (and beer, of course) for purchase. Boarding at 8:30 a.m., return by 5:30 p.m., $65 adults, $52 kids 3-12, circleline.com

Loreley

Lower East Side restaurant and biergarten Loreley does German food and beer year-round, so you know their Oktoberfest game will be on point. During the month-long party, they'll tap a keg of various Oktoberfest beers at 1 p.m. every Saturday, handed out free until it's kicked — and same for a pig roast starting at 3 p.m. Beers will rotate through the month with happy-hour prices on tap brews every weekend, and special events like a Beer

Tasting & Dinner (Oct. 4) and a Sausage Fest (Oct. 10-14). Sept. 22-Oct. 14, no cover, loreleynyc.com

Frying Pan

One of our favorite boat bars is getting the Oktoberfest treatment. The Frying Pan at Pier 66 will deck its...decks with Oktoberfest finery, including costumes for the staff, with the most authentic menu we've found: apple-brined roast chicken, currywurst, giant pretzels and strudels. There's live music from Melinda & the Oompahs and Morningside Lane, costume contests if you're feeling like an early Halloween, raffles, stein-hoisting and more. Entry is free, but if you buy a souvenir stein online ($20), your first drink is included and entry is guaranteed before 4 p.m. Sept. 22-23, pier66maritime.com

Cruise through the festive season with Hornblower

The weather is cooling down, the air is becoming more crisp and the vibrant green leaves are becoming different tones of golds, reds and browns. It's Autumn in New York! As great as Summer can be, Autumn is a time in which you're able to enjoy the beauty of New York City without breaking a sweat. The fun doesn't stop because of a change in seasons, so if you're looking for things to do and breathtaking views, we have the perfect place in mind: Hornblower Cruises & Events.

This prestigious yacht company cruises year-round, for all ages. Whether you're a party of two or part of a large family, Hornblower Cruises & Events will create the amazing experience you're looking for. One of the cruises they're known for which is particularly great for families, is their Jazzy Champagne Brunch Cruise. The name says it all, really, but we'll break it down for you.

Jazzy Champagne Brunch Cruise

First and foremost, there are unlimited perks on this cruise including phenomenal panoramic views of the Freedom Tower, Statue of Liberty, Governor's Island, and more. This 2-hour cruise includes a bountiful brunch buffet, a plethora of delicious desserts, free-flowing mimosas, and coffee and tea to your liking. If you're looking to live lavishly (on a budget), sip on Mimosas in Manhattan, and be serenaded by the live jazz band on board. This is where you want to be.

It doesn't end there. As soon as the band finishes their soulful performance, a DJ takes over and you'll have the opportunity to tear it up on the dance floor, on a yacht, cruising the Hudson River, with the New York City skyline as your backdrop.

It's time to jazz up your brunch! Pun intended. Join the rest of the NYC locals on the new wave: to have brunch on a cruise, with Hornblower Cruises & Events.

The Autumn Harvest!

The summer flew by and before you know it, you'll be seeing Thanksgiving decorations everywhere you turn. Have you made Thanksgiving plans yet? You might want to consider a dinner cruise! Hornblower has multiple cruises on Thanksgiving Day, perfect for all ages. Each cruise runs for three hours and the experience begins with a glass of sparkling wine as you board (apple juice for the little ones). There'll be endless opportunities to strike a pose in front of the Freedom Tower, Statue of Liberty, and Brooklyn Bridge. A gourmet Thanksgiving themed buffet will be available and festive music to start the holiday season off right.

Holiday Office Party? Don't Panic!

Are you part of the Office Holiday Party Committee but have no idea where to start? Besides offering a variety of cruises open to the public, Hornblower Cruises & Events also provides private charters. This basically means that you'll go down in history as party planner of the century! The incredible views from the water will leave your colleagues in awe, along with scrumptious food options to choose from, and top-notch white glove service.

Welcome to Dunder Mifflin

NBC's hit sitcom "The Office" gets a Broadway musical parody — with a woman in the role of Michael Scott.

eva.kis@metro.us

It's big enough news that "The Office" is coming to Broadway as a musical parody. But when "The Office! A Parody Musical" opens at Broadway's Jerry Orbach Theater on Sept. 20, the man sitting at Dunder Mifflin boss Michael Scott's desk won't be a man at all.

The producers of "The Office" musical have decided to gender-swap the role played by Steve Carell on the NBC sitcom into a woman, promoting Sarah Mackenzie Baron to regional manager of Dunder Mifflin's Scranton branch.

"At the very beginning when we started writing [the show], we thought it would be important to see a woman play that part because of who Michael Scott was and how he acted towards women," says Tobly McSmith, who co-wrote the musical with his partner, Bob McSmith. "We thought it would be really funny with his inappropriateness if it was a girl. It made the commentary of our parody really apparent, too."

The Brooklyn-based playwrights went through two rounds of in-person auditions for the role of Michael, but ended up holding a national open call through video submissions. Their casting notice was for actors of any gender, race and age, but they must be a triple threat: "singer, dancer, paper lover."

Hundreds of actors responded; some of the more memorable auditions can be seen at theofficemusicalparody.com/michael. In the end, the McSmiths chose Sarah MacKenzie Baron.

"There is a cluelessness to him, and I think women, because they can see that on a different level with different eyes, they can see that humor too," he says. "Sarah is a really great comic actress, she just knew how to slow it down and make it feel cringe-y and make it still funny and push it and pull it."

"There [are] so many more levels when it's a woman doing it. This show was in the early 2000s, which wasn't that long ago, but there are so many cringe-y moments, especially now, that the commentary was needed."

"The Office! A Musical

Parody" (unauthorized, as are all of the McSmiths' previous musical parodies, including "Keeping Up with the Kardashians" and, most recently, "Friends") follows a very busy day in the life of the characters from the show. "The characters are really cartoonish already," McSmith says, "but there is definitely a way to make them a little more silly and the situations they got themselves into a little more ridiculous."

"The Office! A Musical Parody" opens Sept. 20 at the Jerry Orbach Theater. Tickets are $35-$77; theofficemusicalparody.com

Now you see it...

Can you believe what you see? The new Museum of Illusions finds 70 visual, practical and hands-on tricks designed to confuse your eyes and surprise your brain.

The latest branch of a museum with 19 locations all over the world, the Museum of Illusions opens today at 77 Eighth Ave. in Chelsea with mind tricks borrowed from psychology, math, architecture and art. There are, of course, made-for-Instagram moments like the Ames Room, which makes you seem either very tall or very small through forced perspective, and another that makes it seem like you're walking on the ceiling by gluing furniture to the wall.

There are also holograms, an Infinity Room, Seeing Eye tricks and hands-on logic puzzles like reassembling various shapes into a hexagon.

But the museum, which unlike the many pop-ups is a permanent addition to the city, also requires guidance at times. The very first illusion, for example, is meant to make you seem very small sitting on a chair — but to make it work, you must stand across the room and have the illusion explained before tinkering with how high to hold your camera.

But can it compete with other such galleries-as-museums? Founder Roko Zivkovic came up with the concept five years ago and opened the first Museum of Illusions in Croatia in 2015, when the idea of creating Instagram-made moments was revolutionary. But in a world of incredible eye candy like the Museum of Ice Cream and Candytopia and Rose Mansion, the pleasures of the Museum of Illusions are often more mental than 'gram-able. EVA KIS

YOUR WEEKEND STARTS NOW

Brooklyn goes country

For four days, the Brooklyn Americana Music Festival brings over 50 free shows with bands spanning country, folk, roots, blues, old time and bluegrass to nine venues along the waterfront. Catch them at Sunny's bar in Red Hook to Brooklyn Bridge Park's recently opened Pier 3 in DUMBO, starting with an opening night gala at the Jalopy Theater and ending with a bluegrass brunch at Superfine.

Sept. 20-23, bkamf.com

Leave no rule unbroken

This is the Year of the Woman, and Bustle is celebrating feminine courage, creativity and energy with its first-ever Rule Breakers Festival at the Lefrak Center in Prospect Park. Janelle Monae headlines a full day of performances that also feature Sofi Tukker and Samantha Ronson, plus a sound meditation with The Big Quiet, a retro roller-skating session, and activities like jewelry-making, a braid bar, rooftop lounge by Glenlivet and more, with $10,000 from ticket sales being donated to She Should Run to get women into public office. ## Get a historic nautical tattoo

The South Street Seaport Museum delves into the history of sailor tattoos, with a rare chance to get a tattoo inspired by their collection of historic flash and ephemera. On Friday,

Sept. 21, at 6:30 p.m., there will be a talk by Daredevil Tattoo co-founder Michelle Myles and the Seaport Museum's Michelle Kennedy on the famous tattoo artist Gus Wagner and New York's tattooing history ($10). Then on Saturday, Sept. 22 starting at noon, arrive at Melville Gallery (213 Water St.) to get one of Wagner's historical tattoos by artists from nine of the city's tattoo parlors. Tattoos are first-come, first-serve and priced from $50-$500, cash only. southstreetseaport-museum.org

See the hidden city

Open House New York offers an exciting chance to go inside the glamorous homes, active factories, buzzing offices and soaring skyscrapers normally closed to the public. Expanded to three days this year, the event takes place Oct. 12-14, but the list of sites just went live at ohny.org, with reservations opening up on Sept. 25 — and they'll fill up almost immediately, so have your list ready.

Eat the best of NY street food

The Vendy Awards, also known as the Oscars of New York street food, bring 25 of the most popular sidewalk chefs from food carts and food trucks to one place. They've earned the nominations of their loyal customers, but now the whole city gets to try them all together on Governors Island. Taste your way across their wares (it's unlimited eats with your ticket!) and vote for your favorite in several categories. Sept. 22, $100 and up, event-

Unplug for your family vacation at Plantation on Crystal River

From playing 18 holes of golf to swimming with the manatees, this resort has everything you could ask for.

patrick.king@metro.us

Vacations are a perfect time for you and your family to unplug and enjoy each other's company. There's no better way to do that than with a stay at The Plantation on Crystal River in Florida.

With 195 different rooms, The Plantation can accommodate families of all sizes and is the perfect one-stop vacation destination. Here are some of the great activities you can enjoy as you get in touch with your fun-loving side.

Fun recreational activities

Plantation has everything for both parents and their kids to enjoy. With a giant lagoon-style swimming pool overlooking the Crystal River, two tennis courts, a sand volleyball court, a horseshoes pit, and a regulation-size croquet court — you'll have a hard time staying indoors! You can also enjoy 18 holes of golf on a PGA and LPGA Championship level golf course.

And if fishing is your thing, Plantation on Crystal River has you covered. With the resort's Adventure Center & Dive Shop you can book a family fishing charter for a chance to reel in some large-mouth bass, snook, grouper, redfish and scallops — all of which can be grilled up by the Plantation's restaurant, The West 82° Grill.

Swim with the manatees

Plantation on Crystal River is the only place in the world where snorkelers can swim alongside the West Indian manatee in the wild. This is a rare opportunity to interact with these gentle endangered animals in their natural environment. If you don't feel like getting in the water with them, you can book guided boat and kayak tours with Plantation staff.

Diving

The waters around Plantation on Crystal River have an average temperature of 72 degrees year around, with a large variety of fish and wildlife to view while diving and snorkeling with your family, including argemouth bass, tarpon, redfish, grouper, dolphins and, of course, manatees.

This is the scariest water sport you've never tried

This cold, wet sport is most commonly performed in the UK, and it will push you to the limit.

Fodor'sTravel

Coasteering is an outdoor sport featuring rocks that can cut you and icy water that will make you forget you have limbs. Yet, here I am writing about how fascinating and eye-opening I found it.

Yes, it's sorta-kinda just climbing rocks and jumping into the water below on the coast of, most prominently, UK countries like Wales. But when the rocks are jagged and unpredictable and the water is ice cold (even though you're wearing a wetsuit), your heart skips 47 beats and suddenly you realize, "OK I get it, thrillseekers."

TYF, who has been hosting guided coasteering tours in Pembrokeshire, Wales, for 30 years, describes coasteering as, “a mischievous combination that’ll see you walk, scramble, climb, swim, and cliff jump.”

The thing about coasteering is it's hard. No, there aren't any pre-learned skills necessary to perform the activity, but if you're not in physical shape, I don't recommend it. If you're not comfortable stretching, I don't recommend it. If you can't swim, I definitely don't recommend it. I honestly don't know what I like about the sport, but I do know that there is something to like. It might be that feeling of discovery, seeing places like Wales in all of their natural glory, amplified by very chilly water—and you'll get the opportunity to explore tiny caves and coves that are really only accessible by coasteering!

The guides in charge of my recent trip—two friendly fellas from TYF—directed my group toward jumping points and advised the angle/spot in which we should aim to land in the water. They suggested we keep our hands and feet by our sides in a pencil-shaped manner when jumping. You're jumping from a high place, so you want to make your landing as smooth (and as not painful) as possible. And, if you want to get the true coasteering experience, you will jump. Outside of those directions though, the experience was fairly hands-off.

While the elements of coasteering have been around for years, the activity was officially given its name in a book called Sea Cliff Climbing, a tome dedicated to introducing its readers to Great Britain's "sea cliff climbing" in 1973 by John Cleare and Robin Collomb. Two decades later, the activity became commercial in Pembrokeshire. The jury's still out on official competition, but if that does one day come to fruition, there's no better destination than Wales.

Wales is a beautiful place filled with many a coast. Walking along the edge of the world reduces you to the tiny spec on this gigantic planet that you are. In that sense, coasteering is oddly reassuring; while I was doing it, I didn't think about any issues other than, "How am I going to climb this slippery rock?", "How cold is this water?", and "Am I going to break every bone in my body on this jump?" Against these jagged cliffs, my problems and the everyday hurdles I face stood no chance of distracting me. Coasteering is primal, and it's absolutely an experience that will take you out of your comfort zone. But that's ultimately why we travel, right? So, I guess I do know what I like about it. Thank you for taking this climb with me.

You should know

TYF has a heavy amount of “leftover” shoes people decide to toss out (or forget) after trips in case you forget to bring proper ones; “proper” meaning shoes you can get dirty, wet or, um, destroy. You’ll also learn to cherish your helmet and life jacket. Oh! And, you probably shouldn’t bring your phone or camera for photos. The guides can provide you with some snaps.

You should also know

You might need to trek to the coast after suiting up at TYF's base. There could be cows on said trek; you may be walking through a field in wetsuits; it will be low-key iconic.

What to watch for when Jets visit Browns on TNF

Gang Green takes center stage on Thursday night against the improving Browns.

joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The New York Jets, on short rest after a sloppy loss to the Miami Dolphins in Week 2, look to keep up in the AFC East on Thursday night when they visit the Cleveland Browns.

In years past, this could have been chalked up as an automatic win considering the Browns went 1-31 over the past two years.

However, this a new-look Browns team that could very well be 2-0 had it been for competent kicking. After a shocking tie with the Pittsburgh Steelers in Week 1, a missed extra point and field goal down the stretch in Week 2 resulted in a loss to the New Orleans Saints.

We could very well be watching the future of the AFC tonight.

Here are a few things to watch for from both teams.

JETS AT BROWNS

TONIGHT, 8:20 PM ET
NFL NETWORK

JETS

DARNOLD'S DEVELOPMENT

There have been times this year when rookie quarterback Sam Darnold looked like an established veteran. There were other times when he looked like a rookie. Those are the growing pains that come with starting a 21-year-old passer slated to be the future of the franchise.

Through two games, Darnold has completed over 66 percent of his passes for 532 yards with three touchdowns.

However, three early interceptions are a concerning number as turnovers were the USC product's lone red flag during the pre-draft process.

BROWNS

HOBBLED DAWGS

The Browns see some big names banged up as Thursday Night Football draws near.

Star wide receiver Jarvis Landry was limited at practice this week due to a knee injury. The former Dolphin immediately gave the inept Browns legitimacy over the winter when he was traded for.

The impressive rookie cornerback Denzel Ward is also on the injury list as a hamstring injury has gotten in the way of a flying start to an NFL career that has already featured 12 total tackles and two interceptions.

DANGEROUS DEFENSE

Early returns on the Jets defense so far this year have been extremely promising. Through two games, they have already forced seven turnovers, five of them coming in Week 1 against the Lions.

The pass rush came alive last week as the Jets sacked Miami Dolphins quarterback Ryan Tannehill four times while forcing a pair of fumbles.

They should feast against a Browns offensive line that has already yielded 10 sacks this year despite the elusive Tyrod Taylor under center.

STRONG PASS RUSH

While the Jets' pass rush has looked dangerous, so has the Browns', which is only going to provide Darnold with more challenges.

Second-year defensive end Myles Garrett has already racked up two sacks in his first two games after picking up seven in his first 11 last year.

Defensive tackle Larry Ogunjobi, who had just one sack during his rookie season last year, has already picked up three in 2018.

This is a fast, athletic group that can get after the quarterback. So Darnold is going to have to stay on red alert all night in Cleveland.

MAYBE MAYFIELD?

Tyrod Taylor was acquired from the Buffalo Bills this offseason to give the Browns a legitimate No. 1 quarterback.

That standing didn't last long, though, as Cleveland picked Heisman Trophy winner Baker Mayfield with the top pick of the draft in April.

The veteran Taylor has struggled to gain any sort of consistency under center with the Browns. He's completed just 52.9 percent of his passes with a pair of interceptions.

If he continues to misfire and the Browns start to struggle, don't be surprised if head coach Hue Jackson calls on Mayfield to make his NFL debut.

Jimmy Butler demands trade, Knicks, Nets are on his list

The Timberwolves star guard put in a trade request on Wednesday.

joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Minnesota Timberwolves star Jimmy Butler requested a trade Wednesday, according to the Athletics' Shams Charania, after meeting with Timberwolves management over the weekend.

And he could very well land in New York.

The 29-year-old shooting guard has had a tumultuous, short stint in Minnesota after being traded from the Chicago Bulls prior to the 2017-18 season. He appeared in just 59 games due to injury and has had an inconsistent relationship with star big man Karl-Anthony Towns.

Set to become an unrestricted free agent following the 2018-19 season, it looked as though Butler wanted no part of staying in Minnesota after declining their max contract extension (four years, $110 million) back in July.

Management had a chance to iron things out Sunday when both sides met, but it's clear they weren't able to.

According to ESPN's Adrian Wojnarowski, the New York Knicks, Brooklyn Nets and Los Angeles Clippers are on his list of preferred teams.

Granted, they are better poised to make a run at him in free agency with the prospect of two max salary slots emerging next summer.

Regardless, Butler is reportedly looking to team up with Kyrie Irving next season as the Boston Celtics star point guard is set to hit free agency at the end of this upcoming season as well.

Irving and the Knicks have seemingly been circling each other since he demanded a trade away from the Cleveland Cavaliers last season. Irving has stated a desire to play alongside Kristaps Porzingis while it was recently reported that the Knicks were going to make the point guard their No. 1 target in free agency next year.

Trading for Butler would only help the Knicks' chances of picking up Irving next year while making New York a premier destination for future big-name free agents. It could throttle the organization from basement-dweller to legitimate contender in the East.

Granted, it would take a lot to land Butler, who would likely re-sign with the Knicks should they also acquire Irving. Bleacher Report's Sean Highkin suggested the Knicks could part with veteran Courtney Lee and the young Frank Ntilikina to nab Butler.

While Lee is an established vet who can provide secondary scoring, Ntilikina has the promise to develop into a very good two-way player, something that is right up the defensive-minded Timberwolves head coach Tom Thibodeau's alley.

The Nets have worked their way into the conversation as they will also have the cap space to sign Butler to a max deal. However, the best they could offer are young talents like D'Angelo Russell and Jarrett Allen. The organization would be wary of dealing away its draft picks after being cleaned out for a half decade after the Paul Pierce, Kevin Garnett and Jason Terry deal back in 2013.
